GRUELL WAIVED PRELIMINARY

And was Bound Over to the Circuit Court in the Sum of $1000

MANY STORIES ARE RIFE

Regarding the Thorne-Gruell Case—Young Girl Sticks to her Confession

Link Gruell was arraigned before Squire Jackson this morning at ten o'clock on a charge of having improper relations with fifteen-year-old Myrtle Thorne, and waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the circuit court in the sum of one thousand dollars, the bond being promptly given.

The gravity of the alleged offense comes on account of the girl being below the age of consent, for in such cases one of the most heinous offenses
in the calendar of crime is charged.

The court room was crowded by a curious gathering this morning, for they fully expected that something of a sensational nature would be enacted at the hearing. The little girl was present, as was her father, and many relatives and neighbors of both them
and the accused man.

Myrtle Thorne still stands by the last story she told, wherein she related to a representative of this paper that she was forced to sign the affidavit against Gruell, because of threats made by her father. She says the whole story was a trumped-up affair,
and that it is a lie from start to finish.
Many expected to see a scene between the girl and the father, had she taken the stand this morning, and made the startling declarations and accusations against her parent in his presence, as she says she will in trial.

Stories of every nature are rife.
One is to the effect that the girl has been corrected by friends of the defendant and made to tell the second story, although little credence is placed in this, as the girl declared to the representative of the Republican that the pangs of a guilty conscience was giving her no end of worry, and she could not get any peace of mind or rest until she unburdened herself and told the whole truth of the affair. On being closely questioned she said over and over again that no one had talked to her about making a confession, and she did it of her own volition.

Some there are who claim that the case would never have been brought into the courts if a certain amount of money had been forthcoming at the beginning.

Nothing will be done now until the February term of court convenes,
when the entire matter will be thoroughly aired.

SEWER CONTRACT WILL SOON BE DONE

Contractor Says Work will Require Twenty-Four More Working Days

"If this good weather continues,"
said one of the sewer contractors yesterday, "we will have completed the entire sewer system in Rushville with twenty-four more working days." But the good weather did not continue,
although the men are working today.
With anything like "decent" weather
the sewer contract will be completed in at least six weeks. What ho! now for that cry of 1910. 'Twas ill guessed,
to say the least.

Miss Mildred Newbold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Newbold, living south of this city, has a severe attack of chickenpox.

Marriage license have been issued to Albert Dremmen and Miss Nellie Mc-Daniel.

BASKET BALL POSTPONED FOR NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

The local basket ball team and Shelbyville team will not play at the high school building in this city Friday night as was at first announced.

A telephone message was received this morning from the Shelbyville
captain that a member of their team named Harrison, had died Wednesday night and on this account the team would not be here.

THE DEAD BEATS WILL BE ROUTED

Over Seventy-Five Rushville Business Men Organize for that Purpose

BLACK LIST WILL BE MADE

And Credit Refused to all Chronic
"Never Pays" Who are a Nuisance

About seventy-five business men of Rushville have completed an organization which will be known as the Business Men's and Merchant's Protective Association which was effected for the purpose of protecting themselves against bad accounts.

A "Black List" will be prepared of parties who have repeatedly been asked to settle their accounts and have shown no disposition to do so. Each merchant will be furnished with such names, and it will be a violation with penalty to sell such persons goods on credit.

The black list will be in force within the next week, thus offering an opportunity to those knowing themselves to be indebted to the business men to liquidate such indebtedness.
The movement was started to throw the red flag into the faces of all chronic "dead-beats," and call a halt on their incurring accounts, which the cash purchaser has to stand in the
"profit and loss" column.

HELLO! WE WOULD PLEASE TO RESIGN

Is the Word Returned by Committee on Investigation of Telephone Scandal (?)

It is understood that the committee appointed by T. M. Green, president of the Co-Operative Telephone Co., to make an investigation of charges made by one of the directors recently regarding the "gobbling-up" of the majority of the stock, has decided,
after due deliberation, that the matter is not worthy of their efforts of investigation and have turned the work back to the regular board, where such matters can be and should be looked into, in a business like manner.

The funeral services of James Johnson, one of Rush county's oldest farmers, who died Tuesday night at his late residence north of Arlington, were held at the Christian church at Arlington today, conducted by Rev.
Burns, pastor of the Christian church at Morristown. The remains were taken to Manilla for burial.

The funeral services of Mrs. Martha Land, who died a her home Wednesday morning at 3 o'clock, will be held at the Arlington Christian church Friday at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev.
Burns, of Morristown. Burial will occur at the Arlington East Hill cemetery.

The bi-monthly examinations of the township schools of Rush county are being held today and tomorrow.

HARD TO FIND MAN FOR PLACE

Trustees of Knightstown Home have Under Consideration Difficult Matter

TO REPLACE PROF. GRAHAM

Few Men Could Superintend the Home as did that Esteemed
and Competent Veteran

The board of trustees of the Indiana
Soldiers and Sailors Orphans Home at Knightstown, met Tuesday afternoon
at the office of Governor Hanly to consider the appointment of a successor to Prof. A. H. Graham, who died Wednesday morning, and who, for the last seventeen years has been superintendent of the home.

Mr. Graham tendered his resignation to the board Jan 1st, to take effect
March 1st. For several months Mr.
Graham had been in ill health and it was not at all assured that his health would permit him to serve even until March 1st. The board is considering a number of applications.

The law requires that the superintendent of the Knightstown home be a veteran of the Civil War. There are not very many veterans in the State who are qualified to take the position and at the same time are young and vigorous enough to assume the duties.

The Knightstown home has about 500 children of all ages. The superintendent also is required to direct the work of about ninety employees and to superintend the school and take care of more than 200 acres of land. It is a position which requires a great deal of care and time.

When he was appointed to the position seventeen years ago, Mr. Graham lived in this city. The members of the board of trustees of the home are:
Hugh Dougherty, of Indianapolis;
George W. Duncan, Greenfield; Luther Short, Franklin, and Laura A.
Cumback, Greensburg.

MUCH INTEREST IS STILL MANIFESTED

In Revival Services Which will Soon Close at the Churches

The revival services at both the M.
E. church and U. P. church were well attended last evening.

Dr. V. W. Tevis preached an enthusiastic discourse on "Almost Persuaded," in which he emphasized the fact that men ought not to have to be persuaded to live the best life, but ought to yield to the gospel without persuasion.

Rev. W. H. Clark, pastor of the U.
P. church, preached an excellent discourse and plead for men and women to live the Christ-like life.

The influence of these revivals has been far-reaching, going beyond the church and community. The good done at this time will be felt long after these weeks have passed.

Connorsville News: W. W. Sanders went to Rushville, today to visit his sister, Mrs. Clint Bodine.

B. W. Riley is being talked of as a candidate for township trustee.

Miss Hazel Cox, of North Morgan street, is improving daily.

The H. T. Condee Implement company filed suit in the Rush circuit court today against J. E. Hinchman and Leonard Weewee on note. Demand $325.

L. M. Perry is preparing to move with his family to Kentucky, their former home.

Examinations are being held in the city high school today and will continue tomorrow.

MAY HAVE FIELD DAY EXERCISES

At Rush County Fair Grounds
During Fair Week this Year

MEETING WILL BE HELD

At County Superintendent's Office Next Saturday to Discuss the Proposition

The township principals of the Rush-county schools met at Superintendent W. O. Headlee's office Saturday to discuss the advisability of a "Field Day" for the Rush county schools
this year.

If decided upon favorably, the program will consist of athletic games, including foot races, dumb bell exercises, trapeze performances, high jumping, basket ball and other games
and athletics.

It has been suggested that the "Field Day" be held in connection with Rush county fair and one day be given to the pupils of the Rush county schools.
Should this be done it would add another attraction to the county fair
for Rush county people and people outside counties who attend each year.

Some action in all probability will be taken in the matter by the township principals and county superintendent, Saturday.

FARMERS' SHORT COURSE A SUCCESS

The Enrollment over 1100 and Much Interest Manifested—
Benefits Incalculable

The Farmers' Short Course held at Purdue University January 13-18th, 1908 was a grand success in every way.
More than 1100 farmers and their wives registered and took the work.
The course was so arranged that lectures and demonstrations on the various phases of corn, stock, horticulture, dairying, poultry and domestic science were given every day. Interesting and popular entertainments were provided for the evening sessions and at these meetings the people were favored with selections from the various musical organizations of the University.

The corn and fruit shows held in connection with the course were successful from every standpoint. More than 133 plates of fruit were entered for the $300 offered in premiums.
This show did much to interest the young men in horticultural work.

Over 235 samples of corn were on exhibit in the corn show room. The quality of these was beyond that of previous years and showed clearly the effect which previous corn schools and the local shows are having upon corn growers. John E. Clisby, of Arcola, Ill., a prominent corn breeder and an expert corn judge, awarded the premiums. The four handsome silver trophies were awarded as follows:

Johnson county trophy, value $150,
for the best sample white corn, won by
L. B. Olore, Franklin, Ind.

Gray trophy, value $100, for the best sample yellow corn, won by Harvey Gray, Galveston, Ind.

Vogler trophy, value $75, for the best ear of dent corn, won by H. M.
Stout, Trafalgar, Ind.

American Hominy Company trophy, value $50, for the best ear hominy corn, won by S. R. Jones, Terre Haute, Ind.

Dean J. H. Skinner gave the farewell address Saturday morning in which he expressed his appreciation of the work done. This meeting was the most enthusiastic of all and it was voted that the 1908 Farmer's Short Course, was the most successful ever held and the result accomplished more extensive and lasting than those of any previous corn school.

HORSES ALL NEED A HAIR CUT--THE SIGN FAILS

A number of horsemen were relating experiences the other evening
when the matter of clipping came up.
One man declared he never saw horses carry a heavier coat of hair than they are this winter. "Why," he continued, "some of them have hair like a Cotswold sheep." A weather prognosticator would take this as a sign of cold winter.

WHITTON SUES FOR A BIG SUM

Employee who Lost his Arm,
asks $15,000 of Innis-Pearce Co.

WAS CRIPPLED FOR LIFE

In a Machine Without Safe Guards
in Violation of State Laws,
Plaintiff Complains

One of the largest damage suits instituted in the Rush circuit court for some time was filed today by John R.
Whitton, through his attorneys,
Smith, Cambern & Smith and John
F. Joyce against the Innis & Pearce
Furniture company, in which he asks $15,000 damages for injuries sustained.

It is said in the complaint that on July 17th, 1907, shortly before six o'clock, while plaintiff was cleaning up the sawdust and small blocks of wood from the machinery called the "fritter" or "shaper" his right arm was caught in the machinery and so badly lacerated that amputation was necessary.

Whitton further says that he being a common laborer, did not know that the machine was running, which he alleges was unguarded in violation of the State laws.

The injured man is 52 years of age, and a man of family. The injury has left him sadly crippled for life.

WATCH OUT FOR OVER FIVE MONTHS

Full of Carnival Spirit Elmer
May Loans his Ticker to a
"Visiting Friend"

Elmer May is in another sorry plight. And as usual when man is seriously troubled, a woman will always be found in the case. But in this case, it is a case of a woman with a case.

During the last street fair a young lady who visited in Rushville from Rockville, became acquainted with Mr. May. So well did she become acquainted with him that she borrowed a watch which he was carrying and which belonged to his mother.
The rub came when she forgot to return the watch. Five letters from Elmer and one from his mother failed to bring results and now he threatens to bring legal proceedings to recover
it. The girl's father is reputed to be well-to-do.

The Rock Island Plow company has filed suit in the Rush circuit court against J. E. Hinchman on note. Demand $200.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight and Friday, except snow in extreme northwest portion tonight. Much colder tonight.

HOW TO CONDUCT THE NEWSPAPER

It is the One Thing Everyone
in the Community Knows
How to Run

MUCH CRITICISM GIVEN

But Most of it is Given in a Friendly (?) Manner and in Good Spirit

"A newspaper is the thing which every person in town knows how to run except the editor. It is what should be an oven for 'roasts' on everyone except yourself, members of your family and a few of your particular friends, for whom it should be a sweet-scented bouquet of praise.

It is a promoter of profanity if it is not on the front porch when you look for it in the evening and what you tell the man who works on it isn't fit to go into a decent person's home.

It is what the young man who borrows it from the saloon bar "kicks"
about because it contains only one sporting page and which the woman tells her neighbor when she takes it is not worth subscribing for because it has but one page devoted to fashions
and making current jam.

It is what the merchant threatens to pull his ad out because he cannot have the sum of the paper and what the gold subscriber declares is going to the demonition bowwows because it is getting so that nothing but advertising can get a position in it any more.

It is what you want to see the editor
to keep your name out as soon as you have settled with the police justice on the morning after and to get your name into as soon as the cards are issued two weeks before.

It is what is just too horrid and inquisitive for anything and "please keep my name out" when the reporter wishes to know about the bridge whist club and which is the mean old sheet that never gets anything right when your name is omitted from among those present.

It is what no one can ever forget to condemn for its mistakes and never remember to praise for the good it accomplishes.

It is a subsidized organ when it fails to tell about so and so's wife running away with the coachman and a libelous yellow rag when it reports your police court trial for killing your neighbor's rooster.

It is what is difficult to print so as to suit anybody and which would be nothing but eight pages of blank white paper with a headline if it were published so to suit everybody—and then it wouldn't suit them.

STOESSSEL THRIFTY

It Is Now Charged That Commander at Port Arthur Profited by Siege.

REAPED A RICH HARVEST

When Eggs Were a Dollar Apiece It Is Said the General Had Many Eggs to Sell.

Besides Which His Private Herd of Cattle Turned Him a Pretty Penny.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—Testimony showing the straits of the civil population at Port Arthur during the siege was given at the courtmartial of Lieutenant General Stoessel by Colonel Vershinin, who was civil commissioner of that place and who fathered the charges made against General Stoessel, that he reaped a rich harvest by selling eggs and milk and other luxuries to the sick during the siege.

According to Colonel Vershinin, mere existence was a luxury for civilians. Provisions were enormously expensive. A cow cost $800, a pig $500, eggs $1 each and other things correspondingly. He testified that Mme. Stoessel had a large herd of cattle and a flock of chickens and charged exorbitant prices. Shortly before the surrender, he said, she summoned a merchant and attempted to dispose of these, the supposition being that she had an inkling of the coming surrender.

The prosecution's case is practically all in, the judge advocate having dismissed all his witnesses except three, but several of General Stoessel's witnesses have yet to be heard. Among the witnesses examined was Captain Bolgakoff, who was recently pardoned and restored to the army after having served twenty-two months' imprisonment of a three and a half years' sentence in the fortress for a revolutionary speech to the Russian prisoners during his captivity in Japan.

ANSWERS BACK

Governor of Michigan Replies to Deposed Treasurer's Charge.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 23.—The resignation of State Treasurer Frank P. Glazier of Chelsea and the appointment of former Governor John T. Rich to succeed him, was accompanied by a sensational attack of the retiring state treasurer upon Governor Fred M. Warner, who had demanded Mr. Glazier's resignation, and a reply by the governor, who denies the charges made. In reply to Mr. Glazier's charge, in his letter of resignation, that the governor was familiar with the conditions in Mr. Glazier's bank at Chelsea, which is now in the hands of a receiver, Governor Warner says that the bank reports received at the executive office do not show who are the borrowers from the bank, or what collateral is furnished, and that he did not know about certain heavy loans of the Chelsea Savings bank to Mr. Glazier and the latter's relatives until informed by Banking Commissioner Zimmerman, who has been in office only one year. Governor Warner also denies that he ever mentioned to Mr. Glazier during the year 1907 the matter of a deposit of state funds in the Detroit United bank of Detroit, of which the governor is vice president, Mr. Glazier having charged that Governor Warner solicited this deposit, which last year ran up to $250,000.

Governor Warner, in his statement, attributes Mr. Glazier's attack to the governor's political opponents, and declares that the books of the Chelsea Savings bank show that Mr. Glazier deposited state funds in that bank late in November, "at a time when he absolutely and positively knew that both the bank and he himself were insolvent." When the bank closed it held $684,000 of state funds.

CALLING IN THE MONEY

Treasury Department Withdrawing Deposits of Public Funds.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The secretary of the treasury has announced that owing to the great improvement in financial conditions throughout the country, he has begun the gradual withdrawal of deposits of public moneys in moderate amounts from the national banks. The first call has been made upon New York banks and amounts to approximately $10,000,000. This is in addition to about $10,000,000 returned by the New York banks since Dec. 26. The secretary also announced that a general call for a moderate amount will be made upon banks in other cities at an early date.

It hardly seems possible, but one of the jurors in the Thaw case swore that he had never heard of the defendant before. The judge, in mercy, should have ordered him back to the farm and his previous happy estate.

It is said that the Russian grand dukes pocketed the money sent from this country last year to the Russian Red Cross Society for distribution among the famine sufferers. Nothing is more likely for a class they seem to be so utterly bad that they would not hesitate to rob the dead.

Some of the mail order houses in Chicago are discharging their clerks who were getting living wages, and keeping only those whose wages, are barely sufficient to hold body and soul together.

It is this inhuman practice that forces so many young women in the cities to lives of sin. People who are tempted to send orders to such houses in the belief that they can buy more cheaply of them will do well to ask themselves whether they can endorse so immoral a policy, for it is immoral.

An international association for the rational destruction of rats has been formed in Europe and originated in Copenhagen. That the rats disseminate disease is reason enough for a campaign against them, but the society appealed to the thrifty Danes on economic grounds. In the capital and its environs the association's emissaries bagged more than a hundred thousand rats, at a cost, for capture and destruction of about 3 cents each.

Aerial Mail.

(Notes weighted with lead are dropped from the French war balloon to the friends of the balloonists below.)

When Betty stepped into her aeroplane lightly
She looked in my eyes as I bade her good night.
And as she departed she called to me brightly,
"I may stay a week, but don't worry; I'll write."
So, cheered by the hope for an early epistle,
I turned through the misty and gathering gloom,
And, piping a low and melodious whistle,
I thought of my love as I sauntered toward home.

She dropped me a line the next evening at twilight,
A note full of tender affection, and that Came into my bedroom, along with the skylight.
And shockingly dented my second best cat.
My cook the next morning stepped out of the basement
On hearing the milkman already astride.
A message that Betty had aimed at my easement
Came out of the heavens, and—well, it got her.

The butcher, the baker, the coal man and Now leave my supplies in the next street but two.
They swear if they dare to approach any closer
They know they'll be shot by some fond billet doux.
Last night as she sailed my dear Betty indite
A fifteen page letter to give me a proof
Of how she adores me, and when that one lighted
It took off a chimney and stove in the roof.

Although to love's bondage I still am submissive,
It irks one to know that his house is a jail,
The which he can't leave lest some eighteen pound missive
By chance is among his aerial mail.
I'd hate to have Betty distrust me or doubt me,
I'd hate to be harsh to the girl I adore.
But still if her notes keep descending about me
I'll answer some day with a Krag forty-four.
—James J. Montague in New York American

"Now," argued the committee, "you will agree that each rat and destroys each day a half cent's worth of food and material. One hundred thousand rats would do $200,000 worth damage, at least. Having spent about $3500 on killing them, we have saved you $190,000-odd." Both farmers and city folks were won by this demonstration, and now the government is abetting the association in its work of "rational destruction."

The township trustees are required by law to publish their report showing just how they have spent their money. This law has been the means of saving tens of thousands of dollars of the people's money annually in this State. Publicity of the affairs of public officials always prompts them to economize. There is need of at least one more law along the line of publicity. City school boards should be authorized and required to publish a financial report annually. The taxpayers in general of a municipality have little conception of what they pay for the education of their children.

In the death of Andrew H. Graham, superintendent of the Soldiers and Sailors' and Orphan's Home at Knights-town, the state is deprived of the services of a good and useful man. He was the ideal man for the responsible place he held for the last fifteen years and it will be a difficult matter to fill his place. Before going to Knightstown he was for more than twenty years superintendent of the Columbus schools and he left his impress on that community as few men are able to do.—Seymour. Republican.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Jan. 23.—The newspaper dispatches stating that Governor Hughes of New York has become a candidate for the Republican nomination for president were generally discussed by politicians here. While no surprise was occasioned by this word, many of the Republican leaders declared that Mr. Hughes' attitude gives a new aspect to the race, and that henceforward he must be dealt with as a strong factor in determining who shall receive the nomination.

The Outlook For the Wage Earner.....

By CARROLL D. WRIGHT, Former Federal Commissioner of Labor.

THE wage earner has been more APPREHENSIVE during the last few weeks, I take it, than any other individual in the community. His interest now is TO AVOID STRIKES, TO SAVE HIS MONEY AND TO PATRONIZE THE SAVINGS BANKS INSTEAD OF THE SALOON for the purpose of preparing for his share in the continued prosperity or to be able to sustain himself during temporary depression. He has not had the best of it the last few years, while capital has. He has seen PRICES GO HIGHER AND HIGHER, until in some lines they have become prohibitive. On the whole, he has seen wages go higher and higher, always keeping an advance, varying in its degree, on prices. The margin before the late financial flurry was less than the last few years, so that, taking the general range of prices and the general range of wages, WAGES HAVE NOT INCREASED more than 4 or 5 per cent more rapidly than prices.

So the wage earner has felt that he was not getting his FULL share of the benefits of the greater prosperity that has prevailed, and in this respect his position is correct. Now, with the new conditions confronting us low prices will prevail again—that is, if prices go down, and there may be such a tendency during the next few months. WAGES WILL REMAIN PRACTICALLY WHERE THEY ARE for some time, for it has been well established by long experience that when prices rise wages remain down for awhile and then follow on, rising as fast as prices and ultimately a little more rapidly. So when prices go down wages follow along at a later period, but they do not fall quite as low as at any previous periods, because the constant trend of wages with ever varying alterations of conditions is UPWARD.

WHILE THE ABSOLUTE STABILITY AND INTEGRITY OF CAPITAL MUST BE PRESERVED FROM A PURELY ECONOMIC POINT OF VIEW, IT IS ALSO ESSENTIAL THAT THE PROSPERITY OF THE WORKINGMEN—THE GREAT FORCE THAT MAKES CAPITAL VALUABLE—SHOULD BE PRESERVED, BOTH FROM A SOCIAL AND AN ECONOMIC POINT OF VIEW.

Republican leaders generally were reluctant about discussing Governor Hughes's candidacy for publication, lest something they might say should be construed as being unfavorable to the candidacy of Vice President Fairbanks. The opinion was freely expressed, however, by some prominent Republicans, that the vice president's lieutenants in Indiana are pleased at the position taken by Governor Hughes, as they would rather help him at the finish than Secretary Taft if they can't nominate their own man. For some time the impression has prevailed here that the vice president's managers intended to do everything in their power to throw the Indiana delegation to Governor Hughes if it becomes apparent that the vice president has no chance. It is said that wherever it has been possible the Fairbanks boomers have brought out candidates for delegates in this state who will not vote for Secretary Taft at any stage of the game, and they believe they have been successful in a majority of the districts. It is not thought that there are more than half a dozen candidates for delegate in Indiana now who are second-choice Taft men. In many localities there is a strong Hughes sentiment which it is predicted will grow rapidly in view of the announcement he has made and the reported determination of the Fairbanks men not to stand for Secretary Taft.

Representatives of the large coal companies sent here to keep in touch with the proceedings of the mine workers' convention declare that if the operators of Illinois, Indiana, western Pennsylvania and Ohio agree on Jan. 30 to a resumption of the interstate movement, that the conference to fix a new scale will not be held in Indianapolis. For many years it has been the custom of the miners and operators to hold their conference here following the annual convention of the former at which they agreed on their demands. During the joint conference the miners from about twenty states, including those from the anthracite districts who had no interest in the bituminous scale, hovered around to watch the proceedings. The operators object to such espionage, and their representatives now here say that the joint conference will be held either at Chicago, Columbus or Detroit, where only the miners from the four states included will participate.

Indiana mayors do not think they should be prevented from succeeding themselves in office. This developed at a meeting of mayors here, when that part of the cities and towns act which limits mayors to one term was criticised. It is likely that the next legislature will be asked to lift the ban. Other parts of the act were criticised. The mayors thought that the salaries prescribed for controllers and engineers of fourth-class cities were too low. The mayors may get together soon again and frame up their objections to the cities and towns act with recommendations for changes.

Edward E. Gates, president of the Lincoln League of Indiana, is sending out a call for the annual convention of that organization at Wabash, Feb. 12 and 13. Senator Beveridge will be the principal speaker, but all of the candidates for places on the state ticket will be asked to take part in the program. The apportionment of delegates will be the same as for the state convention. It is expected that there will be an unusually large attendance owing to the fact that the race for the Republican nomination for governor is now on.

All the prospective Republican candidates for congress in the Fifth district have withdrawn from the race except Otis E. Gulley of Danville and Howard Maxwell of Rockville. A canvass of the seven counties in the district reveals the fact that it is going to be a close race between these two.

Editor Rushville Republican:

I read an item in Tuesday's paper stating that "Easter will be observed this year on April 19th, the latest it has come for a century or more." I have in my possession a file of almanacs, dating from 1866 to 1908. I find by referring to them that Easter came on the following dates: 1867, April 21st; 1878, April 21st; 1886, April 25th; 1889, April 21st; 1905, April 23d.

You will see by this that Easter has come later than April 19th five times in less than a half century.

Wild Ducks.

A composition by Wayne Alter, eight-year pupil of District No. 1, Orange township, D. O. Alter, teacher.

Wild ducks are a migratory bird. They migrate in February and March. There are about twenty breeds of ducks. Most of them pass through Rush county. The Mallard duck is the most common here. The ducks migrate through here in the fall about October and November.

They go north in the spring and build their nests and raise their young. In the fall there are many more ducks than there are in the spring, because the young come back to the south.

The smallest of these ducks is the Scoups. It is 15 inches in length. The largest in the Muscovy. It is 36 inches long. These ducks build their nests along the rivers and lakes of Northern Indiana and Canada. The nests are made of grass and down. The eggs are generally laid about the middle of June. They lay about six to twelve in a season.

The Mergansers are usually the first ducks to arrive in the spring. They are 25 inches in length. There are three breeds of Mergansers.

The American or Fish duck is the most common. The Red-breasted Merganser and the Hooded Merganser are very similar to the American. The American Merganser's food consists of fish, while the Red-breasted and the Hooded Merganser consists of wild celery. The American Merganser's flesh is fishy and unpalatable.

The Mallard duck is very much like the Mergansers. Its food consists of fish and plants. It has a green head and neck and the wings are brown. This duck is 21 inches in length. It nests along a river or lake. There are more Mallard ducks that pass through here than any other kind.

The following ducks are grouped alike—The Widgeon, Pintail, Blue-winged and Green-winged Teals, Black Duck and the Wood Duck are all classed in the same group. These ducks migrate through here in March. All of the ducks but the Black duck and the Wood duck build their nests in Indiana. The ducks' food consist of fish and celery. The Wood duck builds its nest in tall trees. When the young are large enough to fly the mother pitches them into the water.

Some of these ducks are great divers. They can dive in water one hundred and fifty feet. The bill of the Teals are long and sharp. When they catch a fish they can kill it by biting. These ducks migrate south in October for their winter home.

FUTURE OF AEROPLANES.

Farman Expects Five Hour Aerial Line Between Paris and London.

Henry Farman, the French aeronaut who recently won the Deutsch-Archdeacon prize, in an interview at Paris on the future of aerial navigation said that the best results in aeroplane travel would be had from a combination of the principles of the Elierot machine and the cubic cellular aeroplane used by Santos-Dumont and himself. For the present he regards aeroplanes as purely sporting machines, but expects their development to be rapid and foresees the time when an aeroplane omnibus will cover the distance between Paris and London in five hours. M. Farman feels certain that within twelve months aeroplanes will be able to travel seventy-five to a hundred miles at an insignificant cost compared with the expense of running an automobile for the same distance.

Costs of Office.

On the day after his election the chief magistrate of a certain town in the Midlands who enjoys the reputation of being rather "near" in money matters was asked for a subscription to the local football club.

"I really can't do it," he replied. "Just look at the outlay I've already been put to through accepting office!" And he produced a small ledger inscribed on the cover "Mayoralty Expenses." On the top line of the first inside page was the entry, "Dress suit, £2."—Reynolds' Newspaper.

THE MUSE OF POETRY IN SCHOOL

Poetic Efforts by Scholars of Jackson School

"In the Attic," by Leah Flint, age 11. Up in the dusky attic, In a corner under the eaves, I searched through the trunks and boxes, While the wild wind rustled the leaves.

For what I was searching I knew not, But I had nothing else to do, So I languidly opened the boxes, And looked their contents through

And there lay an old rag doll, With its eyes of glass beads made, And what remained of its corn-silk hair, Hung down her back in a braid.

"January," by John Conway, age 13. Gay January with her cold, cold chills, With Father Winter on the hills, And Jack Frost on the windowpane, All are back now once, once again.

You may still see the children play As if it was an autumn day, For they never, never mind the snow, As merrily, merrily, to school they go.

O, beautiful month you can never last, You are destined to slowly, slowly pass, While the children move slowly to age, As easy as the turning of a page.

"United States," by Wm. F. Caldwell, age 13.

The United States is a mighty place, It is a home of the brave And a land of the free and equal, Which our forefathers fought to save.

We were but thirteen colonies, But we grew until we were forty-five States, Then we had a rebellion and made many unhappy homes, But we are still the good old United States.

"My School Mate," by Haskell Higgins, age 13.

My schoolmate is a little boy you see, His father is the agent at the O. H. & D.

His father works all day, While Leroy is out at play.

He comes home at night, While Harold and Leroy are having a fight

His brother will work and try While Leroy will make his sister cry. They did live in the country, but they moved to town

Now when Leroy works he frowns His mother will work and frown While Leroy is dressed up like a clown.

He goes to the depot after school, His father will send him home and he will monkey and fool.

He goes out of the house with a hop, Leaving his mother the wood to chop. He and his brother will play the slips, And they leave their mother to gather the chips

His name, you all know, is Leroy, Now what should be done with this bad, bad boy.

LAFCADIO HEARN.

The Way the Writer Got Even With the Heartless Editors.

"Lafcadio Hearn, that wonderful writer, worked on newspapers in his youth," said a publisher, "and the ruthless way his studies were changed, cut and butchered was a great woe to his heart."

"In after years Hearn took a malicious joy in collecting stories about editors—editors and their superior and omniscient way with manuscript."

"One of his stories was of an editor to whom a subscriber said:

"I enjoyed that poem on the three ages of man in today's paper, Mr. Sheers; I enjoyed it immensely. Do you know, though, I thought that it was originally written the seven ages of man?"

"So it was, sir; so it was," said Editor Sheers pompously. "Yes, the extract was originally written the seven ages of man, but I had to cut it down for lack of space."

"Another story concerned a weather report. A reporter, discussing the weather, wrote that winter still lingered in the lap of spring."

"The editor as he read over the article called the reporter up to his desk and told him that he would cut out that sentence about winter lingering in spring's lap. He said the idea was good enough and original and all that sort of thing, but it would not do to publish because the high moral tone of the paper had to be maintained in a town full of school girls."

Staring at Royalty.

Royalties are early cured of any shyness of being looked at. They are there to be seen, and both the king and queen when they go to the opera and turn their glasses on the occupants of opposite boxes are openly amused by the disconcerted looks of persons who feel abashed under the inspection. Not a trace of self-consciousness is left on the face of an English royalty, with the exception of perhaps a single princess under an artillery of glances. Such attentions are anything but resented. Indeed, the beautiful Duchess of Devonshire used to say that when the butcher boy ceased to turn round after her in the street she would know her reign was over.—London Chronicle.

"Do you mean?" Quarrier's voice was not his own, and he brought it harshly under command—"do you mean that you think it necessary for me to say I know her? What object would be attained by that? I did not take her to the Patrons."

"Nor did I. Ask her how she got there. Learn the truth from her, man!"

"What proof is there that I ever met her before I took her into supper at Fleetwood's?"

"Proof! Are you mad? All I ask of you is to say to the governors what I cannot say without using your name."

"You wish me," asked Quarrier icily, "to deny that you made that wager? I can do that."

"You can't do it! I did make that bet."

"Oh! Then what is it you wish me to say?"

"Tell them the truth. Tell them you know I did not take her to the club. You need not tell them why you know it. You need not tell them how much you know about her, whose brougham she drove home in. I can't defend myself at your expense—intrench myself behind your dirty little romance. What could I say? I denied taking her to the club. Then Major Belwether confronted me with my wager. Then I shut up. And so did you, Quarrier—so did you, seated there among the governors between Leroy Mortimer and Belwether. It was up to you, and you did not stir!"

"Stir!" echoed the other man, exasperated. "Of course I did not stir. What did I know about it? Do you think I care to give a man like Mortimer a hold on me by admitting I knew anything? Or Belwether, do you think I care to have that man know anything about my private and personal business? Did you expect me to say that I was in a position to prove anything one way or another? And," he added, with increasing harshness, "how do you know what I might or might not prove? If she went to the Patrons club, I did not go with her; I did not see her; I don't know whether or not you took her."

"I have already told you that I did not take her," said Siward, turning whiter.

"You told that to the governors too. Tell them again if you like. I decline to discuss this matter with you. I decline to countenance your unwarranted intrusion into what you pretend to believe are my private affairs. I decline to confer with Belwether or Mortimer. It's enough that you are inclined to meddle." His cold anger was stirring. He rose to his full, muscular height, slow, menacing, his long pale fingers twisting his silky beard. "It's enough that you meddle!" he repeated. "As for the matter in question, a dozen men, including myself, heard you make a wager, and later I myself was a witness that the terms of that wager had been carried out to the letter. I know absolutely nothing except that, Mr. Siward; nor, it appears, do you, for you were drunk at the time, and you have admitted it to me."

"I have asked you," said Siward, rising, and very grave, "I have asked you to do the right thing. Are you going to do it?"

"Is that a threat?" inquired Quarrier, showing the edges of his well kept teeth. "Is this intimidation, Mr. Siward? Do I understand that you are proposing to bespatter others with scandal unless I am frightened into going to the governors with the flimsy excuse you attempt to offer me? In other words, Mr. Siward, are you bent on making me pay for what you believe you know of my private life? Is it really intimidation?"

And still Siward stared into his half veiled, sneering eyes, speechless.

"There is only one name used for this kind of thing," added Quarrier, taking a quick involuntary step backward to the door as the blaze of fury broke out in Siward's eyes.

"Good God, Quarrier," whispered Siward with dry lips, "what a cur you are! What a cur!"

And long after Quarrier had passed the door and disappeared in the corridor, Siward stood there, frozen motionless under the icy waves of rage that swept him.

Toward midnight, seated in his chair by the window, a deathly lassitude weighing his heart, he heard the steps of people on the stairway, the click of the ascending elevator, gay voices calling good night, a ripple of laughter, the silken swish of skirts in the corridor, doors opening and closing; then silence creeping throughout the house on the receding heels of departure. For a long while he sat there listening.

The cool wind from the ocean blew his curtains far into the room, where they belled out, fluttering, floating, subsiding, only to rise again in the freshening breeze. He sat watching their silken convolutions, stupidly, for awhile, then rose and closed his window, and raised the window on the south for purposes of air.

As he turned to adjust his transom, something white thrust under the door caught his eye, and he walked over and drew it across the sill. It was a sealed note. He opened it, reading it as he walked back to the droplight burning beside his bed:

Did you not mean to say goodbye? Because it is to be goodbye for a long, long time—for all our lives—as long as we live—as long as the world lasts and longer. Goodbye—unless you care to say it to me.

He stood studying the note for awhile. Presently, lighting a match, he set fire to it and carried it blazing to the grate and flung it in, watching the blackened ashes curl up, glow, whiten and fall in flakes to the hearth. Then he went out into the corridor and traversed the hall to the passage which led to the bay window. There was nobody there. Moving swiftly, he walked the length of the corridor and, halting at her door, knocked once.

After a moment the door swung open. He stepped forward into the room, closing the door behind him, and confronted the tall girl standing there silhouetted against the lamp behind her.

"You are insane to do this!" she whispered. "I let you in for fear you'd knock again!"

"I went to the bay window," he said. "You went too late. I was there an hour ago. I waited. Do you know what time it is?"

"Come to the bay window," he said, "if you fear me here."
"Do you know it is nearly 3 o'clock?" she repeated. "And you leave at 6."
"Shall we say goodbye here?" he asked coolly.

"Certainly, I dare not go out. And you—do you know the chances we are running? You must be perfectly mad to come to my room. Do you think anybody could have seen—heard you?"
"No. Good night." He offered his hand. She laid both of hers in it. He could scarcely distinguish her features where she stood dark against the brilliant light behind her.

"Goodby," he whispered, kissing her hands where they lay in his.

"Goodby." Her fingers closed convulsively, retaining his hands. "I hope

Kathryn Tassel.

"I think that you"—Her head was drooping. She could not control her voice.

"Goodby, Sylvia," he said again. It was quite useless—she could not speak, and when he took her in his arms she clung to him, quivering, and he kissed the wet lashes and the hot, trembling lips and the smooth little hands crushed to his breast.

"We have a year yet," she gasped. "Dear, take me by force before it ends. I—I simply cannot endure this. I told you to take me—to tear me from myself. Will you do it? I will love you—truly, truly! Oh, my darling, my darling! Don't—don't give me up! Can't you do something for us? Can't you?"

"Will you come with me now?"

"How can?"

"Will you?"

A sudden sound broke out in the night—the distant pealing of the lodge gate bell. Startled, she shrank back; somebody in the adjoining room had sprung to the floor and was opening the window.

"What is it?" she motioned, with whitening lips. "Quick, oh, quick, before you are seen! Grace may come! I—I beg of you to go!"

As he stepped into the corridor he heard below a sound at the great door and the stirring of the night watchman on post. At his own door he turned, listening to the movement and whispering. Ferrall, in dressing gown and slippers, stepped into the corridor. Below the chains were rattling as the wicket swung open. There was a brief parley at the door, sounds of retreating steps on the gravel outside, sounds of approaching steps on the stairway.

"What's that? A telegram?" said Ferrall sharply. "Here, give it to me. Wait! It isn't for me. It's for Mr. Siward!"

Siward's glazed eyes stared and stared at the scrawled and inkly message:

Your mother is very ill. Come at once. The signature was the name of their family physician, Grisby.

AMUSEMENTS

Some comic operas one might mention are "Has Beens." Not in this class, however, is Willard Spencer's "Miss Bob White," which comes to the Auditorium, Connorsville, Saturday evening January 25th.

True, "Miss Bob White" was written and produced years ago, but like Denman Thompson's Old Homestead, it ever grows younger with the lapse of time. Miss Bob White has been revived this season by the well known managers, Messrs Nixon & Zimmermann, of Philadelphia. With a finger always on the public pulse, they recognized that their many patrons throughout the country desired a change of diet and a revival of Miss Bob White was the result. To add a piquant flavor to the show they engaged the little comic opera comedian Frank Deshon for his old part of "Billie Van Million," and backed him up with a singing organization of forty-five fresh young voices. In the big cast of favorites will be found such well known names as Matt Hanley, Wm. Iaverty, J. J. Johnson, Walter Roberts, Jos Leighton, Lillian Burnett, Zillah Harris and Connie Mac. The soprano and soubrette roles are in the hands of capable people, namely Misses Loris Scarsdale and Helen May, the former in the title role, and the latter as Golden Rod.

There was a "scratching a id mic" at the Vaudet theatre last night when the subject, "If I Only Knew" was presented, in which a small miscreant blew powder on everyone he met, which made them "itch" like they "had them" for sure. When this picture was produced the power of suggestion caused a general "scratch" all over the audience.

The other subject, "The Lady Doctor's Husband," was also a comedy bill.

takes pleasure in offering for Monday Jan. 27th a strictly high-class Lyceum attraction, Durno & Co. This same attraction was presented here three or four years ago by the local Lecture Course and a large appreciative audience were loud in their praise of the "very clever" work in the art of ledgerdmain presented by this master magician. In conjunction with a good line of "comedy magic" will be presented many other pleasing features. Seats now on sale at Hargrove & Mullins.

CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS

Mr. Hansbrough Makes Interesting Charge in Senate.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Rapid progress was made in the house of representatives in the consideration of the bill to codify and revise the penal laws of the United States. The only amendment of any importance which got through was one by Ollie James of Kentucky, making it a criminal offense under heavy penalty to falsify government crop statistics, the object of the amendment being to protect the cotton and tobacco growers from speculators. Over fifty pages of the bill were disposed of. Except for a political speech by Mr. Kimball of Kentucky the proceedings were monotonous and at no time were there a hundred members in their seats.

The senate spent over an hour in discussing a resolution offered by Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota directing the department of commerce and labor to suspend its investigation into the affairs of the International Harvester company, which was ordered over a year ago. During this discussion Senator Hansbrough declared that the "harvester trust" is attempting to control the selection of delegates to the next Republican national convention, and is especially plotting to defeat him for re-election to the senate. The resolution was finally referred to a committee. The criminal code bill was again considered for two hours.

Giving State's Evidence.

Portland, Ore., January 23.—Former United States Commissioner H. H. Hendricks, in Judge Hunt's court, pleaded guilty to his share in the alleged fencing of land in the Butte Creek Livestock, Land and Lumber company. It is reported that Mr. Hendricks has been granted partial immunity in consideration of his telling all he knows in connection with the alleged conspiracy.

Trial Nearing Its End.

New York, Jan. 23.—The end of the second Thaw trial is fast approaching. This was indicated late yesterday when Dr. Charles G. Wagner, the first of the alienists to be called by the defense, took the stand for his preliminary examination.

A GOTHAM TRAGEDY

Woman Seeks Vengeance and Death in a Crowded Room.

New York, January 23.—Sweeping through the crowded restaurant which takes up the eighth floor of Macy's department store, and into the gentlemen's cafe, a tall, stylishly dressed woman bent for a moment over the shoulder of a diner, whispered something in his ear, and then, drawing a revolver from her muff, emptied the contents of the five chambers into his body. As her victim, Frank Brady, a newspaper advertising solicitor, slipped lifeless to the floor, the woman flung the weapon from her and, taking a second revolver from her muff, shot herself first in the head and then twice in the breast. She died a half hour later.

A note found in the woman's purse proved her to be Mrs. Mary Roberts Clark, a manicurist, the widow of a police officer and step-mother of a six-year-old son, Raymond. Brady was thirty years old and the sole support of a helpless aged mother, for whom he had made a home. The shooting was the culmination of a series of violent quarrels, and, according to the woman's intimates, in fulfillment of a threat to murder Brady in a public place, "before the world," unless he renewed the attentions she asserted she received from him when he was less prosperous and she in a position to befriend him.

The police had little difficulty in tracing the tragic story back from effect to cause. The suicide, who was about thirty years of age, was Mary McLean when she married John Roberts. When the latter died a year ago she assumed the name of Clark and supported herself and child first as the wardrobe woman at an up-town theater, and then as a manicurist. She was of a prepossessing appearance and had marked business ability. Last August she made a will in which she was able to provide for the education of her son at a fashionable school in West Chester county. A clergyman was made executor. While she was in prosperous circumstances, and before the death of her husband, Brady had lodgings at her home, and she declared that she helped him to the success which he subsequently attained. A few months ago he left her home and made a home for his mother, whom he brought here from New Jersey. Recently Mrs. Clark thought that Brady was availing her, and when he called at her home occasionally they quarreled.

A few days ago Mrs. Clark called upon her attorney and told him that something serious was going to happen. Yesterday she went to her bank, made a cash deposit, wrote a note identifying herself and referring the reader to her attorney, and, armed with three revolvers, went to the store where she knew Brady usually lunched. Stepping from the elevator, she waved aside the waitress who approached her, and made her way hastily to a small smoking room for gentlemen, just off the main dining hall. The big room was filled with women who were lunching after the morning shopping, and amid the buzz of conversation her agitated manner attracted the attention only of the waitresses, one of whom noticing her approach the men's cafe, asked if she was seeking someone. "Yes," she replied, "and I know where he is, too."

She brushed the girl aside and in a moment stood behind Brady's chair and spoke to him. Before he had time to reply she had shoved a revolver in his face and commenced firing. The head, the neck, the shoulder, the breast and the abdomen were successively pierced by bullets and Brady lay dead at her feet. Giving one glance to the half-dozen men nearby who were momentarily stunned by the pitiless murder, Mrs. Clark whipped another weapon from her furs and put a bullet near her right ear, and two others in her bosom.

The shooting created consternation among the shoppers, and there was a rush for the elevators. Employees of the place quickly closed the door, shutting off a view of the smoking-room and reassured the women patrons, few of whom realized what had occurred.

THEY DEMAND DEFENSE

Ports on the Pacific Call on Congress for Submarine Boats.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Responsive to numerous petitions from Western commercial organizations, Representative Kahn of California has introduced a bill to provide for the defense of Pacific coast ports.

CONGRESSMAN KAHN.

The bill appropriates $1,000,000 toward the construction, by contract, on the Pacific coast of submarine boats of the most approved type.

"HOMESPUN BRIGADE."

Enough Congressmen Now Clad Like Uncle Joe to Start One.

They are going to form the "homespun brigade" in the house of representatives and go back to first principles, says a Washington correspondent to the New York Sun. Representative Wyatt Aiken of South Carolina is the organizer of the brigade. In the Fifty-ninth congress Mr. Aiken came up from his home in Abbeville with his rotund figure clad in an old fashioned homespun suit. One day he was passing through the speaker's lobby and encountered Speaker Cannon. "Aiken," said the speaker, "where did you get them jeans? Do you know I haven't seen any of that cloth since I was a boy in North Carolina."

Mr. Aiken explained that an old woman in the district had made it, and on his next visit to South Carolina he got a bolt of the cloth and presented it to the speaker. Mr. Cannon had it made into a suit, which was the envy of every man in the house. Since that time Mr. Aiken has been able to get recognition and postoffices whenever he wanted them, but he has been besieged by a score of members for cloth enough to "make a suit like Uncle Joe's."

Last spring when he went home he engaged the old lady to make all the homespun she could during the summer. The result was three suits. These Mr. Aiken brought up to Washington a few days ago and presented to Representative Ryan of New York, Representative Lee of Georgia and Representative Griggs of Georgia.

These three, with the speaker and Mr. Aiken, will form the charter membership of the "homespun brigade." Other applicants will be admitted when the old lady turns out some more jeans. It is costing Mr. Aiken a lot for uniforms, but he doesn't mind that, for he gets everything else he wants.

HUGE HYDROGEN PLANT.

Government Establishment to Furnish Gas For Aerial Machines.

In line with the recently adopted policy of the United States government to take the lead among the nations of the world in developing balloons and aerial machines the government has arranged for the erection of a huge hydrogen plant to create gas for balloons and aerial craft, says a Washington special dispatch to the Cincinnati Enquirer.

This plant will be located in Fort Myer and will be the headquarters of the balloon fleet. Apart from its equipment will be a big reservoir with several feed lines, and while in operation the balloons will merely have to sail up, pick up a feed line and replenish their supply of hydrogen.

Major Russell and Captain Chandler, who will have charge of the construction of the plant, recently returned from Mount Weather, where they examined a gas generating plant installed by the weather bureau. Major Russell said the inspection committee was ordered to ascertain if the weather bureau plant was suitable for adoption by the signal corps.

Triumph of Mothers-in-law.

Mother-in-law completely crushed son-in-law in litigation in the courts at Chicago the other day. Judge Carpenter refused to issue an injunction asked for by Carl Emil Christensen to restrain his mother-in-law, Bertha Larson, from visiting his home, says a Chicago dispatch. "How can I do it?" said the court to Attorney A. K. Flanningham, who appeared for the complainant. "If I issued such an order, all mother-in-law jokes would cease to exist, and the people would be deprived of the comic supplement."

Finger Nail Pen.

Miss Lizzie Martin, an eighteen-year-old Red Lion girl, has devised a finger nail pen, with which she does all her letter writing, says a York (Pa.) dispatch. The sight of an old quill pen gave Miss Martin the idea of allowing the nail of the index finger of her right hand to grow to a proper length. The nail was then trimmed to the shape of a pen and split. The girl declares that, aside from its novelty, the new pen is a decided improvement over the ordinary sort.

THOUSANDS CURED

Wonderful Success of Hyomei in Curing Catarrh, Even in Chronic Stages.

Hyomei is the most unusual remedy ever known for the cure of catarrh.

It follows Nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs as its healing balsams are taken in with the air you breathe, thus reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs and preventing their growth.

Use Hyomei at the first symptoms of catarrh. Do not allow the disease to extend along the delicate mucous membrane, gradually going from the nose to the throat, thence into the bronchial tubes, and then onward and downward until lungs are reached. Hyomei will cure all curable forms and stages of catarrh. Johnson's Drug Store take the whole risk, and offer to refund the money for a dollar outfit if it fails to cure.
